

GP-301381

ELECTRONIC VEHICLE REGISTRATION AND LICENSE PLATE

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus is provided for electronically providing vehicle identification and registration information to a vehicle. The system includes a remote control unit, which receives and stores vehicle

5 identification and registration information. At least one computer on the vehicle is configured to receive the vehicle identification and registration information and to store such information. An electric license plate coupled to this computer for electronically displaying at least a portion of the identification and registration information stored in the computer.